

Evaluating cities on their residents' access to grocery stores

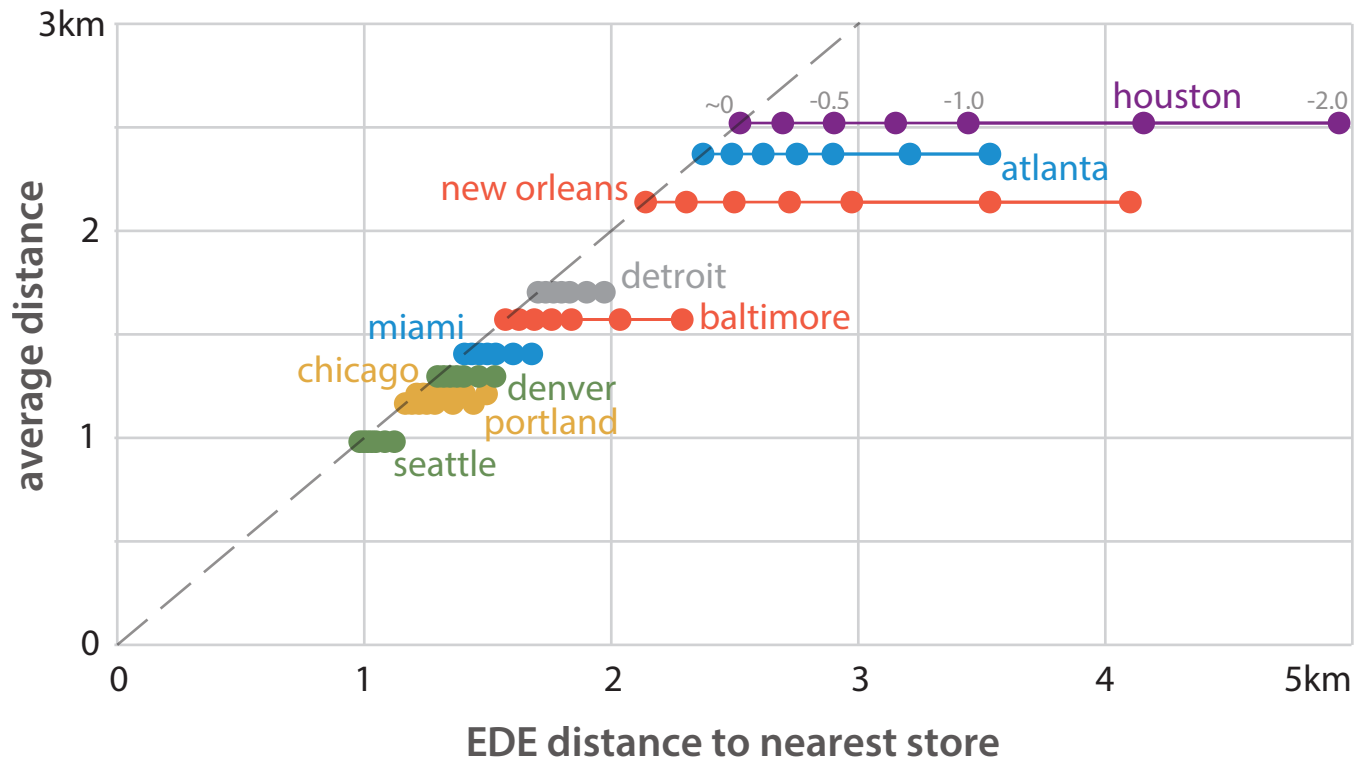

Distance from nearest supermarket in ten US cities and the inequality index for those cities.

A. Relationship between the average distance to nearest grocery store and the inequality measured by the Gini Index.

B. The distribution of residents' access to grocery stores in Seattle and Houston.

C. The mean (average) and EDE for ten US cities, including how the EDE is sensitive to the aversion parameter.