

Traditional measures of inequality can be unsuitable for use in urban systems

A. Residents' distance to their nearest supermarket in Houston, TX, showing the histogram, cumulative distribution, mean, and 1-mile threshold.

B. Two arbitrary distributions with different gini coefficients.